Definition 1.1.3 (Equality of two Matrices) Two matrices $A = [a_{ij}]$ and $B = [b_{ij}]$ having the same order $m \times n$ are equal if $a_{ij} = b_{ij}$ for each $i = 1, 2, \dots, m$ and $j = 1, 2, \dots, n$. In other words, two matrices are said to be equal if they have the same order and their corresponding

Property 1: (i) The sum of the Eigen values of a matrix is equal to the sum of the elements of the principal diagonal (trace of the matrix). i.e., $\lambda_1 + \lambda_2 + \lambda_3 = a_{11} + a_{22} + a_{33}$ (ii) The product of the Eigen values of a matrix is equal to the determinant of the matrix. i.e., $\lambda_1 \lambda_2 \lambda_3 = |A|$

$z + 3b = 1$. This is a system consisting of two variables and two parameters. We then solve the equations for the basic variables, x and z : $x = 2 + 2a - 2b$, $z = 1 - 3b$. Remember that $y = a$ and $w = b$, so we have: $x = 2 + 2a - 2b$, $y = a$, $z = 1 - 3b$, $w = b$. Note: In your Linear Algebra class (Math 254 at Mesa), you may want to line up like terms.

Most important is that the dot product is always seen as the product of a row vector times a column vector, and its result is a 1×1 matrix (i.e., a scalar). In this regard, the most meaningful notation for the vector dot product is $u \cdot v$, or $v \cdot u$. In analytic geometry, two vectors are written: $u = u_1i + u_2j + u_3k$, and $v = v_1i + v_2j + v_3k$, where.

CBSE Class 12 Maths Notes Chapter 3 Matrices. Matrix: A matrix is an ordered rectangular array of numbers or functions. The numbers or functions are called the elements or the entries of the matrix. Order of a Matrix: If a matrix has m rows and n columns, then its order is written as $m \times n$. If a matrix has order $m \times n$, then it has mn elements.
